

Notes on Contributors

Anastasiia Anisimova is a researcher in the field of applied linguistics from the University of Łódź in Poland. Anastasiia has always been inspired to learn more about languages and now she is mainly interested in didactics and andragogical language teaching, or conveying the language in a more pleasant and interesting way for adult learners. Her latest works revolve around various methods of overcoming language anxiety.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-7019-4697>

Contact details: University of Lodz, Sekretariat Instytutu Anglistyki, Wydział Filologiczny UŁ, ul. Pomorska 171/173 90-236 Łódź pok. 4.36 (anastasiia.anisimova@edu.uni.lodz.pl)

Sümeyye Çetin is currently pursuing a Master of Arts degree in Foreign Language Education at Burdur Mehmet Akif Ersoy University, Türkiye. She is also an in-service English as a Foreign Language (EFL) teacher. Her research interests consist of assessment in language teaching and teacher education.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0009-0003-6530-112X>

Contact details: Department of Foreign Language Education, Faculty of Education, Burdur Mehmet Akif Ersoy University, Burdur Mehmet Akif Ersoy University Istiklal Campus 15030 Yakakoy, Burdur Turkey (sumeyye221009@gmail.com)

Kübra Doğan is currently pursuing a Master of Arts degree in Foreign Language Education at Burdur Mehmet Akif Ersoy University, Türkiye. Her research interests lie in language assessment and curriculum development.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0009-0002-1319-5516>

Contact details: Department of Foreign Language Education, Faculty of Education, Burdur Mehmet Akif Ersoy University, Burdur Mehmet Akif Ersoy University Istiklal Campus, 15030 Yakakoy Burdur Turkey (12kubra.dogan@gmail.com)

Pedro Luis Luchini, a full professor and research group director of “Cuestiones del Lenguaje” at UNMdP, Argentina, holds a postdoc in Linguistics from Universidad Federal Rio Grande Do Sul, Brazil (2019), a PhD in Letters from UNMdP (2015), and an MA in Applied Linguistics and ELT from King’s College, University of London, UK (2003). He graduated in ELT from UNMdP (1993) and his main areas of interest are Applied Linguistics with a focus on English pronunciation.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-7692-8361>

Contact details: Diagonal Pueyrredón 3218, Dto 12 “C,” Mar del Plata, Provincia de Buenos Aires, Argentina (luchinipedroluis@gmail.com)

Marek Molenda (PhD) is a research-and-teaching assistant at the University of Łódź. His major research interests include CALL, pedagogical lexicography, corpus linguistics in language education and general academic didactics.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-5468-1524>

Contact details: University of Lodz Sekretariat Instytutu Anglistyki, Wydział Filologiczny UŁ, ul. Pomorska 171/173, 90-236 Łódź, pok. 4.36 (marek.molenda@filologia.uni.lodz.pl)

Magdalena Tomaszewska is an Assistant Professor in the Institute of Linguistics and Literary Studies at the University in Siedlce, Poland. Her interests include historical linguistics, especially the history of the English language, glottodidactics, and philosophy of language. She advocates interdisciplinary research, and when possible - applying the results to practice. She has presented her studies at recognised conferences and published in edited volumes and (inter)national journals. Her current project focuses on theoretical and practical aspects of labels accompanying noun-related and nominal lemmata in recognised online English Monolingual Learner’s Dictionaries.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-2710-7396>

Contact details: Uniwersytet w Siedlcach, ul. Żytnia 39, pokój 3.32, 08-110, Siedlce Polska (magdalena.tomaszewska@uws.edu.pl)